

Workplace Conduct & Respect

Policy ID HR-CONDUCT-2026 | Effective 1 September 2026

Every employee is expected to contribute to a respectful, inclusive and professional workplace.

This training summary supports the Employee Code of Conduct and Speak-Up Procedure.

Policy applies in offices, remote channels, business travel, client sites and company events.

Harassment and Discrimination

What is prohibited

Harassment includes unwelcome verbal, visual, physical or digital conduct that creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive environment.

Discrimination based on characteristics protected by applicable law is prohibited in hiring, pay, assignment, promotion, access to opportunities and separation decisions.

One serious incident may violate policy; repeated lower-level conduct may also become harassment.

Sexual Harassment

Examples and reporting

Examples include unwelcome sexual comments, repeated requests for dates after refusal, inappropriate touching, sexual images, or conditioning a work benefit on sexual cooperation.

Employees may report concerns to their manager, People Operations, the designated Internal Committee channel where applicable, or the confidential ethics channel.

Reports should be handled promptly, sensitively and on a need-to-know basis.

Bullying, Retaliation and Bystanders

Expected behaviour

Bullying can include repeated humiliation, threats, deliberate exclusion, abusive messages, or misuse of authority.

Retaliation against a person who raises a concern, participates in an investigation, or supports another employee is prohibited.

Bystanders should intervene when safe, document what they observed, and report serious concerns through an approved channel.

Investigation Process

What employees can expect

Reports are triaged for immediate safety, conflict of interest, legal requirements and the appropriate investigation path.

The investigator may review records and interview the complainant, respondent and witnesses. Parties are expected to cooperate and preserve relevant information.

Findings use the applicable company standard and may result in coaching, warnings, reassignment, suspension, termination or other corrective action.

Scenarios and Key Takeaways

Apply the policy

Scenario: A colleague repeatedly comments on another employee's appearance after being asked to stop. This should be reported; repetition after a clear boundary may constitute harassment.

Scenario: A manager gives a poor rating because an employee participated as a witness in an investigation. This may be prohibited retaliation.

When uncertain, ask People Operations. Good-faith reports are encouraged even when an investigation does not substantiate a policy breach.
